THE SNARLING CRITICS.

There is one infallible rule by which you can guide your newspaper venture safely. If you can command the snarling criticism of the abjectly dependent organs and the malignant hatred of the corrupt and blackmailing journals which here and there disgrace journalism, you can confidently rely upon the integrity, wisdom and efficiency of your work.

—Col. A. K. McClure in Philadelphia Times.

Dare Uncle Sam knock that chip off of Chili's shoulder.

President Harrison is expected to expatriate on Chilean affairs next Tuesday or Wednesday.

The friends of Kansas City claim that she will get the big slice on the first ballot as the location of the democratic convention.

The Missouri delegation in congress are putting in splendid work for Kansas City as the next national democratic convention city.

The Bazaar received a car load of paper Friday upon which will be printed a newspaper for the people now on earth. This is official.

The country at large, and the democratic party especially, should be pleased at the information that Speaker Crisp is almost able to yield the gavel.

It is not probable that the state democratic executive committee will convene until after the national committee meets and fixes a date for the national convention.

During the past week the democrats in congress have scored several good points, and general good management has been evidenced on that side of the house.

The export trade of the country for December was the largest on record, and the business outlook is superb. The immense grain crop of the states has been a bonanza.

The Kansas City delegation left for Washington last night in the interest of that city as the meeting place of the coming democratic national convention. The best wishes of the Bazaar, for success, follow them.

Miss U's coming to the aid of Kansas City in her contest for the democratic national convention in a most commendable fashion. Every true Missourian wants to see Kansas City win.

The above is from the Kansas City Times and credited to the Jefferson City Tribune, and is correct with the exception that the Bazaar and not the Tribune is the author.

Editor Van B. Wisker, of the Pettis County Enterprise, is clear headed enough to understand where Missouri's chief seat of learning should be rebuilt. Here is what he says:

"The Enterprise is very willing to catch on to the rope with J. West Goodwin as Captain in this proposed 'tug of war' contest. Let us pull for the new State University to be built in Pettis county and at Sedalia of course."

Among those formally mentioned for the democratic nomination for railroad commissioner the Bazaar is pleased to notice that of that princely gentleman, Ed. G. Williams, the well known county clerk of Polaski county. There are, in the democratic party, many who would fill the position acceptably, and whom the Bazaar can support most cordially—and yet, should the convention, in its wisdom, select Mr. Williams, there is no question but that he would perform the duties of the office with credit to himself and honor to the state. He is developing a very considerable strength.

A WRONG TO WOMANHOOD.

A singular instance of womanly devotion to a brutal husband has come to light in New York.

A man named Quackenbush, wooded won and married a good little woman, who bore him four children.

The man belonged to a fine family, was well educated, but possessed a disposition which at times was fiend-like. He was in the habit of beating his wife for the most trivial causes and constantly threatened her life. Now and then by way of pastime he would open a closet door, wherein her wardrobe hung, and with a revolver would shoot through her bonnet or jacket with playful wishes that his wife were inside of them. He at one time broke a large mirror over her head and for a pleasant break in the monotony would make her get down on her knees and repeat a set of rules which he had outlined for her conduct.

He had plenty of money, but his wife and children were kept in poverty.

It was all very funny until—well, one day, he tired of the routine and shot his wife and the poor woman now lies at a hospital with a bullet embedded in her head and her four helpless little children are being looked after by strangers.

Of this latter incident in the career of the Quackenbushes, there is one ray of sunshine, however, the brutal husband, after shooting his wife, shot himself and thus rid the world of a monster as well as saved the electrocutionist an engagement.

The question in connection with the above, is, by what law of heaven and earth is a woman obliged to endure such treatment as that accorded by Quackenbush to his wife?

The divorce question is one which has been discussed pro and con and certainly there is not much to be said in its favor when it is the foundation upon which the marriage of convenience, or gain, or mere passion is based and which takes no heed of "until death do us part" other than as a pretty sentiment which is better carried out by the breach than the observance.

But with the above illustration of woman's forbearance is there not a weakness which a woman should get rid of. No woman is enough under obligations to a man to bear brutal treatment at his hands. She has the right of any individual to protect herself. When he promises at God's holy altar to care for her under all conditions, morally, she is released from her obligations when the man's promise is not fulfilled. Not, in the sense that she is to be untrue to her marriage vows, not that she is to neglect her obligations as a home keeper, or the teacher of her children, but she should rise superior to brutality and, if too weak in her own person to protect herself, should appeal to the law.

There is something of the dog nature in a woman, when she heals the wounds of the lash with tears and takes up her burden again without protest, and it belongs to the day when to be a woman, meant to be a slave. There is nothing admirable in such slavery and there is a wrong against justice, against the higher instincts of womanhood, against wifehood and against God Himself, who created woman from the heart of Adam, not from beneath his feet.

TRANSACTIONS ON WALL STREET.

Sales and Receipts of the Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City Grain, Live Stock and Provision Dealings—Representative Sales of Live Stock—Wheat and Corn in Liverpool.

Wall Street.
 New York, Jan. 16.—The stock market opened with most of the active shares at from 1/4 to 1/2 percent higher than last evening and while a few were lower, the market displayed a firm tone in the early dealings.

Sugar was the only marked exception, dropping to 7 1/2 percent from 8 percent. The Chesapeake and Ohio stocks were active and the preferred stocks specially strong, each reaching figures somewhat higher than before touched.

Sugar afterward recovered its entire loss and a more decided strong tone prevailed in the general list, though the advances, as a rule, were slight.

THE GRAIN MARKET.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 16.—Contrary to general expectation foreign wheat markets were not demoralized to-day. Some New York houses reported liberal acceptances of cable offers. Prices were 1/4c better than yesterday's close. The exports for the week, wheat and flour, both coasts, were a million bushels less than last week.

Corn was firm without any feature and without any advance. Receipts were light and cash demand large.

Provisions advanced sharply, pork closing 30c up, ribs and lard 7 1/2c higher. The receipts of hogs were fair. The week's receipts at Chicago have been 277,000. This is 27,000 more than estimated. Prices of hogs were unchanged.

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 16.—Receipts of cattle were moderate at the stock yards to-day, and the beefs were of better quality than usual. Among them were some really fine ripe export and many choice steers, and the tidy light kind were well represented. Cattle suited buyers better to-day or their ideas are more liberal and the tone of the market and the movement was fairly good. Values were generally steady and when cattle just suited may have been a trifle strong. The run of cows was light and quality not up to yesterday. There was little demand and medium to choice cows were 10 to 15c lower, the best heifers losing the most. Canning cows were steady, also bulls and calves. The feeder trade was quiet and little changed.

For Saturday there was a heavy run of hogs. Choice hogs were a trifle better and common ones not quite so good as yesterday. The general market was in fine condition, with the demand enough for the supply. Best hogs started steady to strong and continued regular to a good close. Inferior hogs were weak to 5c lower in cases, yet there was no material change, the very extreme range being from $3.50 to $4.15.

Cattle—Receipts, 3,500; calves, 80; shipped yesterday, 1,252. Steers were steady; cows 10 to 15c lower and stockers and feeders steady.
